MACLEAN HEALTH AND HIVECLASS ANNOUNCE PARTNERSHIP TO REVOLUTIONIZE DELIVERY OF DIGITAL EDUCATION

NEW YORK — Maclean Health, a leader in healthcare solutions and services for federal and state agencies, proudly announces today its strategic partnership with Hiveclass, a renowned name in digital education platforms focused on physical wellness. The partnership with Hiveclass comes at a crucial juncture when digital platforms play an integral role in education and training. Through this partnership, all federal agencies will be able to purchase Hiveclass via the General Services Administration.

As healthcare and related fields continue to evolve rapidly, the demand for accessible and high-quality training materials has skyrocketed. This partnership promises to cater to that demand, ensuring that individuals and organizations can navigate the health complex challenges with ease and confidence. And with a shared vision for quality and innovation, the two organizations strive to redefine access to educational materials to those who need it, anytime and anywhere.

“Hiveclass was founded with the mission of democratizing access to physical wellness for all. We’ve partnered with schools, libraries and other institutions across the US, including the Department of Defense, making this partnership with Maclean Health a natural fit for our company and vision,” said Joe Titus, CEO and co-founder of Hiveclass. “This partnership will allow us to continue this mission of providing physical health and wellness education to Maclean Health’s network, whenever and wherever they are.”

“This collaboration with Hiveclass signifies our unwavering commitment to delivering innovative and effective solutions to our government agencies,” said Tony Campos, CFO of Maclean Health. “The synergy between Maclean’s dedication to quality and Hiveclass’ expertise in digital education promises a future where no one is left behind in their quest for knowledge and training.”
